Town Council.

A meeting of the town council was held Monday evening, with Mayor Chambers in the chair and the following councillors present: Messrs. Barrett, Adshad, Gooder, Pitt and Spruce.

The first part of the meeting was taken up by the court of revision for hearing claims and objections to the Voters' List. Two claims were heard from persons who owned property, but whose names did not appear on the tax roll. Both the claims were allowed and the names added to the Voters' List.

There were no objections to the Voters' List.

A letter was read from the employees of the town voluntarily offering in view of present conditions to accept a cut of 10 per cent. in their salaries. The council accepted the offer and all salaries will be cut as from March 1st.

A bye-law was passed appointing the secretary treasurer, Mr. Austin as returning officer for the forthcoming election. Nominations will be received Tuesday March 14th from 11 a.m. to 12 noon.

Didsbury Debaters Win Over Innisfail

The Knox Church Young People's Society debating team, Miss Joyce Mayle and Mr. Albert Weston won over the Innisfail team, Miss Emma Freeman and Mr. Mervyn Winters by a close decision in the Provincial Young People's debating contest on Friday evening last.

The subject was, "Resolved that heredity has more influence over character than environment." and the Didsbury team took the negative.

The judges were Miss J. Grant, Mr. A. Russell and Rev. T. J. Stainton.

It has not yet been learned what team the local debaters will oppose in the next round.

Farm Lands

Change Hands

In spite of the depression, several parcels of land in this district have changed hands recently. Mr. C. E. Reiber, local real estate agent has been successful in selling three different farms during the last few days.

The half-section of land known as the Wilcox farm in the Westcott district has been sold to Mr. Wm. Stubbs, of Lethbridge.

The Norman Weicker quarter-section east of town was sold to Mr. C. J. Morsch, of Calgary, and the D. Allen farm at Bergen was sold to Mr. Wm. Graham, of Kincairdine, Ontario.

Farm Home Totally Destroyed By Fire

The farm home of Mr. John Balke was totally destroyed by fire Thursday morning last.

At the time of the fire there was nobody on the premises, Mr. and Mrs. Balke being in Calgary, and the men who were staying at the place were out working.

When the fire was discovered the flames had got such control that it was impossible to save any of the contents of the building.

The cause of the fire is not known. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

Will Check Up On Car Licenses

Constable Dobbin informs us that it will be well for all car owners to obtain 1933 licenses if they have not already done so. The police have been instructed to make a check-up on all licenses, and those without 1933 plates are apt to run into trouble.

Mr. E. G. Ranton visited the southern city Sunday.

"And capture those men and get the credit! Not for me! It's too late. Getting those bandits comes second with me. So long as he saves his face, he doesn't really care whether or not he gets them or not. That Inezna patrol is dead. It was our best hope, but now it isn't even here. I could still go on looking for him, I could bring on an investigation; but that would take months. It'd be too late then; those bandits'll be gone."

She repeated, brokenly: "Gone, gone—yes, it'll be too late then, Alan, that means—means Dave'll be found guilty—and sent to prison—or worse."

For the second time in the years he had known her, Joyce broke down and cried. It hurt Alan as few things in his life had ever done. As he felt her sobbing against him, as he thought of this tragedy looming over her, his last hesitancy about his plan was swept away. With those bandits safe in the watery wilderness of the Thib-Azzah, Dave MacMillan would be convicted; he would be sent up for life. It would break Joyce, break her spirited courage, her self-reliance, her nature. When he thought of the terrible stigma upon a girl so innocent and leave her alone, he shivered.

"I'll never see her brought down to that. I'll get those men. I'll bring the truth into court."

He realized fully that he was starting on a long trail, a trail never to be retraced. He was committing himself to a staggering self-sacrifice. But he had to traverse that path; in honor he could do nothing else.

He rose abruptly, brushing away his first trace of hesitancy; and gave Joyce his hand to rise. "Joyce, there's something I've got to do now. I've got to go. You mustn't stay here. Come." He took her arm, and as they went down the slope, he asked: "I want to see you again before I come final arrangements with you. I want you here when at the wharf in half an hour."

Wondering at his odd tones, his stern purposive manner, Joyce promised him.

PILLS
FOR THE KIDNEYS

THE WORLD'S BEST REMEDY FOR ALL KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES

At Mrs. Drummond's house he left her and started out along the terrace to Haskell's cabin.

Across the desk he demanded, with no preliminaries:

"I want to buy out. Tonight! Here? Now?"

Haskell's eyes narrowed in suspicion. He could hardly believe it. He knew how deeply Baker was rooted in his work and friendships and life in the northern country; and he could scarcely conceive of a man so deliberately throwing away a long brilliant police record at one irretrievable step.

But there was no doubting Baker's words, no doubting his grim manner. Baker was determined to buy out—to get out for good. As he studied the sergeant, Haskell drew back warily. Baker might be trying some trap for him.

He refused. "I'm too short-handed here as it now."

"I don't give a d—n about that, I'm buying out."

Haskell's confidence was returning as he saw that Alan intended no physical violence. "If you buy out, your record ends. You'll have to start all over."

"I'm buying out for good. There'll be no starting over again. I'm getting out of the Mounted, out of the country."

Haskell debated swiftly. He was not averse to Baker cutting his own head off, and he saw now there was no trap laid for him. But there were other things to be considered. His sober judgment, casting back over the last nine months, recalled the score of times Baker had corrected bad mistakes of his and kept the post running smoothly. Wasmuth whispered to him that he needed the sergeant, needed him desperately. And Elizabeth Spaulding . . . Was she going away with Baker? Was Baker taking her with him?

If she went his act in busting the sergeant would prove a boomerang against himself. He tried to temporize.

"I haven't the authority to let you. You'll have to make out application and wait for permission from headquarters."

"That's the rule for close-in detachments. Down north here where a communication would take several months, it's understood that an officer can accept a buy out on his own recognizance."

"But it's not the official rule. Under the circumstances I don't choose to accept your papers."

"You'll choose. I'll make you choose! You've banded me, all right; you've saddled the blame and shame of that patrol on me; you've mouthed your lie and you've got a stool pigeon there to back you up. But I can hang on an investigation just the same. There's things happened last winter that you can't let out of Williamson's coming down here next month. He hasn't got any too much use for you now. If I'm here when he comes, what I'll tell him won't help your standing much."

Haskell lit a cigarette to hide his nervousness. He asked, "Where are you going if you get out of service?"

"That'll not be your affair, thank God! I'm leaving here. Tonight. That's all you need to know."

Haskell started a little. Tonight—no boat coming past. It meant Baker was going by himself! Meant Elizabeth would not go with him but would stay here at Endurance!

Very thoughtfully, he looked away, debating Baker's motives, his reasons for this precipitate move, were dark and puzzling. But he saw no way in which they could possibly harm him. Haskell, an experienced northern man, would still be available, a reliable veteran to turn to, especially if baited by the hope of this vacated sergenty. Haskell would be easier to manage, too. Since Elizabeth was going to stay here, at least temporarily, why should he let this man? The further away he was, the better!

The more he studied the situation, the more it seemed too good to be true that Baker was deliberately cutting his head off, buying out, getting out of the country, leaving Elizabeth here alone, killing any possibility of the investigation that he secretly dreaded.

"I'll consent on one condition to your buying out. Otherwise you'll have to wait for official and regular approval."

"What's the condition?"

"There's none," Haskell said steadily, with the ability to look Alan squarely in the eyes. "It's a difference of opinion between us about the responsibility of this Algonia patrol. If you'll sign a statement to the effect that you had complete charge of the patrol and split your party on our initiative. If you do that, you can buy out. Otherwise you can't."

Alan waved. Signing a name, taking all the stinging disgrace upon himself, strengthening Haskell's guilty hand . . . But then a thought leaped to Jimmy and Larry and love MacMillan and to Joyce, panning her last hope to him. "Wait did it matter, his signing a lie? I would charge one jot or tittle of God's truth? What did a rag of paper matter on his long freedom hunt for those murderers, avenging his partner's, shielding Joyce?"

He said: "I sign. Lead it as heavy as you like. But don't knock Haskell or Pedernault or Youngs."

Haskell wrote out the declaration of responsibility. Alan read it. As he wrote his name, he observed:

"If I were you, I'd name that inspector, and hang it on the wall. It's a certificate of your dishonour."

Not answering, Haskell went on looking up the remaining enlistment period and figuring the amount. Wasmuth brought over the forms and filled in the data. Both Alan and Haskell, with the constable as witness, signed the numerous official sheets of the procedure.

Folding his copy of it, Alan walked out of the door, out of service, out of the Mounted Police.

CHAPTER VI.

The Dark Hour

In his cabin Alan took off his uniform and changed to civilian clothes. It seemed to him he was stripping off his foot-free adventuresome life with that uniform.

What money he had on hand, several hundred dollars, he buttoned carefully in his shirt pocket. His expenses on this trip ahead would be heavy; he would have to borrow. But he was going to take the Victoria job, and he knew Colonel Steele would gladly give him a salary advance.

"I'm Out of the Mounted—Out for Good?"

Then he made up a slender pack—a single blanket, a change of clothes, food for a week or ten days. That was all. No camping outfit, no weapons, no equipment for wilderness travel.

As he was bucking his pack together, Elizabeth unexpectedly came into the cabin. As she stepped into the light, she exclaimed: "Alan! That MacMillan girl told Mrs. Drummond that Haskell denied you! That you're a constable! That he put all the blame of this patrol on you!"

"That's what he did," Alan answered, straightening up, facing her. "I didn't believe he was capable of it."

Little Helps For This Week

"Spoken unto the children of Israel, that they go forward."—Exodus 14:15.

"No man having put his hand to the plough, and looking back to see for the kingdom of God."—Luke 9:62.

Be trustful, be steadfast, whatever betide thee.

Only one thing do thou ask of the Lord.
Grace to go forward wherever He guide thee.
Simply believing the truth of His word. —Anon.

The soul comes to weary itself with planning and foreseeing, giving itself up to God's holy spirit within, and to the teaching of His providence without. He is not forever fretting as to his progress or looking back to see how far he is getting on, rather he goes quietly and steadily forward, and makes all the more progress because it is unconscious. So he never gets troubled and discouraged; if he falls he humbles himself, but gets up at once, and goes on with renewed earnestness. —John Nicholas Grey.

Almost Impossible

Careless pedestrians are no doubt, as asserted, the cause of some automobile accidents; but it is to be remembered that it is pretty hard even for a careful pedestrian to look four ways at once at a street intersection.

The Municipal Secretary.

The secretary is in a great majority of cases is the man who really keeps the machinery of a municipality in operation. Every year or so new men are elected to positions in the council. They must secure instruction and guidance from someone, and this someone is usually the secretary. A councillor or alderman is moved up to the reeve'ship or mayor's chair and he is "green" about his new duties. The secretary sets him right and usually keeps him that way. Municipal councils could not get started and keep going without the secretary. He is "the power behind the throne." And if he has tact and good judgment and uses common sense, the municipality is generally given credit for having a good council.

WELL-KNOWN CANADIAN SIX HAS AIR-STREAM DESIGN AND MANY OTHER IMPROVEMENTS

Canadian to a greater degree than ever because it embodies ideas expressed by thousands of motorists of the Dominion, the Chevrolet Six is introduced with many interesting features. New air-stream design makes these cars among the most beautiful on the market. Fisher No-Draft Ventilation, one of the greatest closed car advancements of the year, is standard equipment. Mechanically, the Chevrolet Six is much improved. Picture above shows the beautiful standard coach. Below, at the left, a view of the front end. At the right, the rear quarter, showing the graceful air-stream lines and skirted fender.

The New Chevrolet will be on Display at Adshead's Garage this week.

Humorous, Dramatic Recital, Knox Church

A popular, artistic and versatile program will be presented March 14th at Knox United Church by Miss Theresa M. Siegel, dramatic reader and entertainer.

Miss Siegel is a graduate of the Detroit School of Expression and English Literature, and depicts the emotions of life's varying character.
Keen humor, wise philosophy and stirring drama are a few of the emotions through which she leads her audience by artistry of voice, mind and motion. She selects stories and poems with messages meant for the heart, then delivers these messages with sincerity and force, which make a lasting impression on her audience.
The entertainment is under the auspices of the C.G.I.T. and Boys' Groups, and Mrs. Mae Studer Campbell and other local artists will assist.

Protecting The Home-Owners

Immediate action to relieve the resident farmer or farm-owner and the urban home-owner not only of the possibility of legal proceedings which might dispossess him of his home, but also of the strain and anxiety which generally precedes such action, has been taken in the Alberta legislature this week by way of an emergency measure introduced by Hon. J. F. Lyburn, attorney-general.

The bill provides that no action may be commenced by any creditor against such home-owner, without a permit from the director of the debt adjustment act and will have effect until such time as the new debt adjustment legislation becomes law.
It applies to resident farmers or farmers who have owned farm homes and are dependent upon the returns from such property, and also to the urban home-owner or man who is residing on a property which he is purchasing as a home under an agreement.

With respect to the farm-owner the bill applies to any kind of claim which may be made against him, and in connection with which proceedings might be taken which would incure costs against his land. With respect to the urban home-owner the bill relates obviously to action which might be threatened against the land which he occupies as a home.

All home-owners as are above described are therefore by this legislation relieved of any anxiety with respect to holding their present homes. It is clearly explained, of course, that this Act only applies to past-due indebtedness and not to new debts, as it is not felt reasonable that anyone should be protected against liabilities deliberately incor-red in the light of present-day conditions.

Banks Of Dominion
In Strong Position,
Declares Minister

"The Canadian banks are in a very strong and exceptionally liquid position and wholly capable of meeting any demands made upon them," said Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance recently.

"The situation in the United States arises out of domestic conditions in that country, and any reaction upon our position should result to our advantage."
The brief statement of the minister was made in answer to a question prompted by the closing of banks in the state of New York and in other states. The minister declined to further amplify his remarks.

Here and There

The first of the season for the Didsbury Pioneer was held on the 1st of March at the Didsbury Hotel.

A cat with a glassy green engraved on its forehead was caught recently at the Fish Coast, Port Alberni, B.C. The cat's greenish color was from one of the company's coat liners.

A trip that formerly took two days over rough trails is now done in 24 minutes by airplane when fish from Northern Manitoba lakes are transported to rail head for distribution over Canada and the United States.

One of the largest sailings of the cruise season was effected recently when the Empress of Australia sailed from New York on a Mediterranean cruise with a list of 400 passengers. Many society prominent Canadians were on board.

The National Sea Flea Hockey Club's tour of Europe overcame all hitches and sailed recently from Halifax by Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm. They are the Allan Cup holders and will play in London, Paris, Berlin and Prague.

Twenty-six year old veteran of the northern British Columbia and Alaska route, the old Prairie Royal, once again with the Canadian Pacific's B.C. Coast Steamships fleet, has been sold out of the service to the Island Tug and Barge Company.

Edmonton's recapture of the Carnival Throne, the Edmonton Hunters' triple victory in the ladies' hockey series, and spectacular ski jumping by youngsters of 12 to 15 were the outstanding features of the 1933 Winter Carnival recently concluded. Miss Violet Davis, of Edmonton, was crowned the 1933 Queen.

Canada's fifth annual mid-winter golf tourney, over the spring the fairways of the Oak Bay Victoria Golf Links for the E. W.
Beatty Trophy, started February 21 with an entry list of 75 men and 65 women. They came from England, Scotland, United States,
British Columbia and the Prairie Provinces.

Fish caught in the sea fisheries of Canada in 1932 totalled 711,917,800 pounds valued at over $11,000,000. Of the total catch British Columbia accounted for 327,613,500 pounds; Nova Scotia, 194,788,800 pounds; New Brunswick, 95,204,800 pounds; Quebec, 72,742,000 pounds and Prince Edward Island, 23,738,000 pounds.

The Place Viger Hotel, Montreal, centre for thirty-year years of the Franco-Canadian political, social and social life of the Province of Quebec, has been given a further lease of life under Canadian Pacific direction until October 1. It was to have closed its doors permanently January 31, but many well-knowned renovations brought about the change.

The Way Out.

The whole world is looking for a way out of the terribly complicated financial and economic mess into which it has been plunged as a direct result of the Great War. Whatever may be the contributory causes to the intensity and widespread character of the present depression, the main root cause of the depression was the war and the terms stipulated in the peace treaties. This is now universally recognized. No one seeks to deny it unless they have some particular end to serve by attributing the world's present troubles to something else.

One of the results of the Great War, and the treaties by which it was ended, has been the development of an intensely narrow nationalism, which, in turn, has led to the adoption of those policies which today are strangling the trade of the world and causing all nations to seek ways and means of making themselves self-contained economic units. It is this which has caused the breakdown of monetary systems and adoption of uneconomic policies by which all nations are endeavoring to produce both primary and manufactured products which are not natural to their particular countries. It is one of the outcomes of the war that every nation is desirous of promoting exports while at the same time shutting out imports, an undertaking which even the dullest schoolboy understands to be impossible.

More and more, thinking men and women are coming to realize that there are only two ways whereby the world can be brought out of the impasse in which it now finds itself. One is through the instrumentality of another great war; the other is by the nations of the world getting together in conference to undo as far as may be possible the blunders made following the last war and to remedy the mistakes which have been, and still are, persisted in by practically all nations.

There may be some inhuman creatures who would welcome the first way out, but they are few and far between. Another war would create a huge demand for products and commodities of all kinds, with a consequent enormous increase in prices, because it must be admitted that war, more than any other agency, creates a huge demand for almost everything, except pure luxuries. But apart from the horrors of war, the final result would be, as it always has been throughout history, the development of another depression surpassing in its intensity and duration even the one through which we are now passing. War would be no cure for our financial and economic ills; it would merely temporarily raise the depression, only to plunge us back into it in more intensified form.

God forbid there should be another war, but there will be unless the nations of the world come to their senses, get together in conference, abandon their narrow nationalisms, and work together in unison for the common good of all, instead of at cross purposes, each seeking to advance itself at the expense of the others.

Yet there are people today so utterly blind or selfish that they go about denying every effort that is put forth to bring the nations into conference and let it be hoped, ultimate agreement and co-operation. These people take the position that conferences are useless; they seek at them; they predict failure for each and every one of them in advance of their meeting. But if the world's salvation is to be found through the medium of conferences, then its final destruction will be brought about by war, because inevitably, financial and economic warfare, in which the nations are now engaged, will, unless stopped, end in physical war.

These people point to the many conferences already held, and they ask: "What good has come out of them?" They say the Lausanne Conference was a failure, yet at that conference the nations of Europe agreed to a 15% reduction in customs duties, worth billions of dollars to a few hundreds of millions. Then, that decision is dependent upon further action yet to be taken, but it was a long step forward toward a solution of the war reparations and war debt problem. The same people say the Ottawa Economic Conference was a failure. Well, that depends upon a person's viewpoint. Some very able statesmen and publicists in many countries regard it as a successful beginning to other policies to follow, while others, it is true, consider that mistakes were made in that it did not accomplish much more in the direction of freeing trade from the artificial restrictions now imposed upon it.

Another world conference is to be held this year, called specifically to deal with world financial and economic problems. All the principal nations of the world will be represented. But already these prophets of despair are going about telling people that it will prove a failure. If it is, it will be true enough to say so after the event, but no good, only harm is done by condemning it in advance. People who adopt such an attitude are not patriots nor friends of their fellow men, but trouble-making busybodies having some ulterior and selfish purpose to serve.

No conference will accomplish all that everybody expects of it or desires it should accomplish. Any conference, if it is to achieve anything, must proceed along the path of compromise. There must be give and take all round. A world of co-operation rather than antagonism must be in evidence. Even the smallest thing accomplished is so much gain, and every such gain opens the way for further gains, just as every loss leads to other and greater losses.

Those who deny and condemn world conferences in advance are, in fact, rejecting the world's only alternative to war as a means of settling differences between nations. There are more conferences now than ever before in the world's history. Why? Because the real and far-seeing leaders of our day are striving as never before to prevent war. In past ages war resulted because the nations did not try to get together and settle their differences and compare their rival interests. And if they do not do so now, war will be the only alternative, the inevitable result.

Those who go about denying, criticizing and condemning such conferences in advance are doing more harm than good. They are the destroyers of peace, rather than the creators of compromise and evolution, since though it may sometimes be, whereby reform is achieved and mankind moves forward to better things.

Nervous—Could Not Sleep Tired Out All The Time

Mr. George S. Miller, Newburg, N.Y., writes: "I was so very nervous I could not sleep at night, and felt tired all the time."

A neighbor told me about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and as she was using them at the time she gave me some to try. I found they were doing me so much good I purchased two boxes and they proved of wonderful help to me."

Has Seen Canada Grow

Montreal Woman Emigrated From England 87 Years Ago

Five years before Queen Victoria became Queen of England, Sarah Davey was born in London, England. Eighty-seven years ago—the year Abraham Lincoln was assassinated, she came to Canada where she has remained ever since.

Mrs. Ryder, as she now is, celebrated her 100th birthday, at her home in Montreal. Ere and prim, the sunlight streaming on her white hair—hair that needs no lace-up to hide the wear of time Mrs. Ryder told of the Canada of 1862.

"I expected Canada would be very busy," she said, "and it was! We lived in the village for nearly 60 years and all my children were born there. Those were good days. In winter we had long sleigh drives and in summer we went over the country roads. There were many more cows, 1,000 cows in our horse-driven buggy. There try roads then. . . . Hereville and the surrounding country is very different now. And the winters were ever so much colder."

Mrs. Ryder doesn't worry about her needs. "She eats three good meals a day," her daughter said, "and has a glass of ale every night before she goes to bed."

The old lady is not out of sympathy with the present generation. "I like to see the girls enjoying themselves," she said, "but I don't think mothers should allow them to stay out all hours of the night as if they weren't interested in them."

Extraordinary Discovery

Ordinary Magnet Said To Extract Cells From Body

Discovery that an ordinary magnet can be used to obtain from the organs where they live the immensely important cells believed to be responsible for the immunity of animals to disease, is announced by two workers of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, at New York. Harmless particles of highly-magnetic iron are introduced into the body in such a manner that the prized cells pick up the metal and gravitate like lodestones to the magnet. It has been impossible heretofore to separate them from the obscuring masses of millions of other body cells. Unhindered by their iron need, they are raised "in vitro," that is, they continue to live and grow in glass dishes. There they are now under observation at the institute for learning more about their functions.

Ceylon Wants Throne Back

Has Been At Windsor Castle For Over Hundred Years

A request that the ancient throne of the Kandyan kings, which has been at Windsor Castle for more than 100 years, should be returned to Ceylon, its traditional home, is being made by the Ceylon state council to the secretary of state for the colonies.

The throne was used by British sovereigns at the investiture of knights of the Garter until 1924, when it was removed by the King's command, from the throne room to the grand vestibule because it was considered out of keeping with the decorative scheme.

The throne, which is an imposing structure of silver gilt, supporting dragons of cut crystal with amethyst eyes, is ornamented with floral decorations. The plotting is set with gemstones.

A New Motor Fuel

Substitute For Gasoline Developed In Ireland

The new chemical substitute for gasoline which was discovered and developed by the municipal gas department of Belfast, Ireland, is proving a success, and is gaining recognition in other parts of the world. For the last 12 months, 12 Belfast municipal buses on different routes have used the new fuel with great success, according to reports. Most of these vehicles are to be converted to use of the fuel at once, and a five-year plan for changing all buses has been outlined. J. D. Smith, the gas works manager, has, in response to inquiries, sent the formula to all parts of the world.

Plan Is Developing

Sea-Air Service Would Make Base At Galway, Ireland, Necessary

A combined sea and air passenger service, that would reduce the travelling time between New York and London to three and a half days, has attracted the interest of influential New York bankers.

The project calls for establishment of a large base at Galway, on the west coast of Ireland, for aeroplanes operating in conjunction with fast trans-Atlantic liners and for a modern, well-equipped harbor to accommodate the liners themselves.

C. H. Clendenen, president of the Irish Trans-Atlantic Corporation, Ltd., which is developing the scheme, is to confer with New York bankers, who have indicated their willingness to back the project. Dutch and Canadian interests, it is learned, also are watching the development closely.

Galway is ideally situated for the plan. A full day or more could be saved in the New York-London route as the fast boats put in there and the passengers under the rest of the trip by air.

The scheme already is so far advanced that it has drawn the interest of the Canadian, British, and Dutch governments, which see in it immense commercial and other possibilities.

Professor Sees N-w Age

Says People Now Willing To Sacrifice For Worthwhile Ends

The end of the present age of cynicism, which he sees as an aftermath of the world war, is envisioned by Dr. Jesse Holmes, professor of philosophy at Swarthmore College, Philadelphia.

"We have passed through three ages," he said. "The age of softness was followed by the age of sentimentality. Since the war cynicism has been the ruling spirit. Now I believe we are entering upon an age of genuine faith and willingness to sacrifice for great and worthy ends."

Win Progress Prize

Memorable Farmers Given Second Award In C.N.R. Competition

The community of Hanover, centering on the town of Steinbach, east of Winnipeg, was awarded first prize in the Canadian National Railways community progress competitions for communities of European origin in Manitoba, according to information received from Dr. W. J. Bask, director of colonization and agriculture, for the company. This is the third year's operation of these competitions.

The first prize community in Manitoba consists of six school districts, centering on the town of Steinbach. This is a Mennonite settlement, started more than 50 years ago. In the first few years of settlement they had no capital for equipment, but gradually established themselves as farmers through their own initiative and endeavor. Today this community is one of the finest from an agricultural standpoint in Manitoba.

The board of judges, composed of Principal John Mackay, Manitoba College; Mrs. David Watt, Birtle, and Brother Joseph P. Bircle, principal of Provencher school, awarded second place to this, a Ukrainian community in southeastern Manitoba, and third place to Sifton, which comprises the north half of the Dauphin municipality, a Ukrainian community north of the town of Dauphin.

National Radium Commission Chairman Draws Attention To Dangerous Nature Of Substance

Radium, the rarest and costliest of minerals, commonly regarded as a valuable solvent of surgery in the fight against cancer, can be the most lethal and dangerous of poisons in the hands of the unscrupulous and the ignorant.

In making this statement to a conference of experts, Viscount Leo of Eardham, chairman of the national radium commission, drew a startling picture of the possibilities for evil if the substance were put to a criminal use, says a London newspaper.

"A tiny flask containing one gramme," he declared, "would be sufficient to murder your neighbor, sleeping on the other side of the wall of a semi-detached house, with out arousing suspicion in the minds of his family or the police."

Urging strict government control of radium, Lord Leo gave alarming examples of the terrible effects of certain patent remedies and cosmetics containing radioactive substances, some of which, he declared, were so deadly that their preparation or sale should be "sternly suppressed."

Lord Leo's pronouncement was made while delivering the Sir James Thompson lecture to the conference of the British Institute of Radiology at Central Hall, Westminster.

While there was doubt about the curative value of radium, he declared, there was none about its palliative effect and its power to relieve pain. On that ground it could claim to be of benefit to mankind. Its greatest foes were ignorance and overconfidence.

It was the conviction of the national radium commission that radium is far too dangerous a substance to be let loose upon mankind. It is the most lethal and dangerous of poisons. It should be prohibited from importation or sale, except under special license.

Under existing conditions the extreme costliness of radium was perhaps the public's best safeguard. At £15,000 a gramme there was not much risk of its becoming a "best seller."

As an example of the perils of carelessness in the use of radium, Lord Leo described the case of the New Jersey girls who while painting luminous watch dials with a preparation containing minute quantities of radium or mesothorium, painted their brushes at intervals with their tongues.

In many cases the consequences did not become apparent until more than four years after the girls had left their employment.

"How many girls are perished as a result of this careless use of radium is not accurately known," added Lord Leo, "but 18 have certainly died and some 30 more are regarded as doomed."

Referring to patent remedies, cosmetic preparations and the like, containing or possessing to contain radium or radioactive substances, Lord Leo stated that in some cases these were harmless. They were merely fraudulent because they contained no radium at all, or only a negligible trace.

On the other hand some commercial preparations containing radium were so potentially deadly that their preparation or sale should be sternly suppressed by law and even made a criminal offence.

"I refer particularly," Lord Leo went on, "to the so-called 'radium waters.' This deadly beverage really contains an appreciable amount of radium, and its first effect is undoubtedly agreeable and stimulating."

"So much so that one of its prominent victims, a Pittsburgh iron-master and an amateur golf champion, not only drank large quantities himself, because it seemed to improve his game, but being wealthy and generous he sent cases of it as gifts to his sporting friends. What became of them I do not know, but he himself died recently from neurosis of the jaw, acute anaemia and abscess of the brain.

"The autopsy revealed the largest amount of radium ever found in a human body, some thirty micrograms, enough to kill three men or women."

"This was perhaps an extreme case, but a credulous public in this country is being flooded with advertisements of quick 'radium cures.'"

"None of these, I am informed, can have the slightest therapeutic value, and to such extent, if any, as they contain radium they must be harmful and potentially dangerous."

"In my view the preparation or sale of radioactive preparations designed for other internal or external use should be absolutely prohibited."

Over Hundred Trains Daily

Electric Service Between London and Brighton Cost £3,750,000

The new electrified service from London to Brighton, Hove, Shoreham, and Worthing six trains an hour each way and refreshments all the time was opened on a recent morning by the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Percy Greenwood.

He and his party, accompanied by newspapermen, left Victoria station at 11:32 and reached Worthing in an hour and 12 minutes, where they were greeted by T. E. Hawkins.

At Brighton a few minutes later Mayor Frank G. Best and council entertained the party to luncheon. This took place in the banqueting hall of that strange exotic structure in Brighton which was a royal palace more than a century ago.

One hundred years ago the first steam coach arrived in Brighton by road from London. These passengers, too, had luncheon. They needed it. The journey had taken them seven hours.

Then there was the once famous Red Rover coach that broke all speed records with horses on the Brighton road with a time of 1 hour 21 minutes.

Someone else had an idea of taking passengers to Brighton on a motor-propelled by rails, but gave it up. On September 20, 1841, the first steam train arrived in Brighton on rails.

The electric service now inaugurated has cost about £3,750,000. On week days it will provide 104 trains and 33,120 seats daily between Brighton and London. An increase of at least 4,000 passengers a week over existing traffic is expected.

English Aristocrat Allows Spiders the Run Of His House

The Marquess of Tavistock, only son of the Duke of Bedford, has a new hobby—spiders.

The marquess, who is a well-known ornithologist, not only studies the spiders but breeds and feeds them and even allows the run of his house at Peasmarsh, Sussex.

Miss Muffet need be frightened no longer, the marquess says, for as far as he can ascertain all the alarming propensities attributed to spiders are mythical. They possess considerable intelligence and the males are past masters in tact when it comes to dealing with their women folk, he says. For instance, if Mrs. Spider is peevish her husband will soothe her by pulling and shaking the web—a proceeding which she seems to like.

Lady Member Of French Secret Service Had Record Of Notable Accomplishments During War

A New Narcotic

Believed To Be More Effective Than Morphine, and Non-Habit Forming

Narcotic science is expected to announce soon the perfection of a new narcotic derivative said to be more effective in relieving pain than morphine or heroin. This sedative—dilandid—is now being studied in the United States Public Health Service and leading clinics throughout the nation.

German and Swiss scientists already have made remarkable claims for dilandid. Several high-ranking German doctors assert that dilandid is not habit-forming.

Recent experiments at the Mayo Brothers clinic are understood to have shown that dilandid is especially valuable in obstetrical, cancer and intestinal treatments.

A report received by Harry J. Angellier, Commissioner of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, from the Mayo clinic states that dilandid in one-sixth the dose of morphine proves as effective.

Dilandid is a cousin of heroin. Chemically it is di-hydromorphine hydrochloride.

Winter Is Less Severe

U.S. Weather Charts Show Spring Is Closing Behind

Charts covering a period of 113 years offered an answer to the old query: If winter comes, can spring be far behind?

Spring, the United States weather bureau decided after long study of the charts, is not so far behind winter as it used to be—but there is no telling about the future.

J. B. Kincor, chief of the climatological section of the bureau finds that the most severe winters during the last century occurred about the time of the civil war, that since winters have been a little shorter and less intense.

Did Not Need Finding

Bobby did not seem to be paying much attention to the lesson, so his teacher thought she would question him, just to see if he had been listening.

"Now, Bobby Jones?" she cried.

"Where are elephants found?"

"Well, miss," said Bobby, "they are so big they aren't very often lost."

She looked like a Parisian. But her name and a sound as British as afternoon tea. Over in Paris, Leo de la Thomas Compton. There was rustling called it out just when, Mimi, among the crowd as the dignitaries stepped up to pin upon his, the red ribbon of the Legion of Honour. Then came a cry of "Vive la France!" a sweeping band of fifteen years and war slogans once more leaped in the blood.

There were whispers that swayed to cheers of "Allez!" "The Skyscraper." For this quiet looking woman receiving the pledge of acclaim of her Country was Mme. Richard, one of the foremost members of the French Secret Service, with a record of notable accomplishments during the War years.

Marthe Richard was an aviator, and that was the service she sought eagerly to join. But the authorities would not hear of it. So she joined the Secret Service and was sent to Spain. Mme. Richard had a previous experience, but she had her own will to point the way for her. It was a brilliant path. First in it was Baron von Kolberg, who was in charge of all German naval intelligence in the Iberian peninsula. Mme. Richard explained to him that she was a French spy, but a dove. He had to think that she would sell out to the Germans. So for fifteen months she led the Baron along, apparently serving with Berlin and Paris. She managed to tell Paris, however, of the German invisible ink, sending along a sample and the numbers and location of German spies in France communicating with Spain. She sent along, also, samples of highly explosive toys with which it was the pressing purpose of the Germans to blow up French munition plants. Finally, she told the most severe winters during the last century occurred about the time of the civil war, that since winters have been a little shorter and less intense.

It must have been a shock to Baron von Kolberg, when one afternoon after she had rifled his safe—she cheerfully informed him that she was about to step out. Such a thought as disloyalty to him had never crossed his mind.

The Baron was later tried for his grave neglect of duty. But no one knew the female name until she was cited for decoration.

It seems altogether too bad that there should be an edict against Secret Service memoirs. Mme. Richard, that is Mrs. Thomas Compton, would make good reading.

Greenland Route Best

Termed Safest Way By Air From Australia to Europe

Fast air travel between America and Europe over a safe route via regular schedule was the prospect held out to an audience in Convocation Hall, Toronto, by one whose pioneer investigations have done much to make such an airway possible. The speaker was Dr. W. H. Hobbs, geologist and explorer of the University of Michigan, who delivered the weekly Royal Canadian Institute lecture, telling what recent expeditions have learned about Greenland. The best air route will use Labrador, Greenland and Iceland as intermediate points, Dr. Hobbs stated. "The longest water jump involved is 600 miles," he said. "This can be also promises the greatest freedom from fog often which over Greenland, which can always be favorable, and is the closest to great circle sailing of all projected courses."

An Afterthought

A neighbor called on the Meektons. After a short talk he rose from his chair.

"Well, well," he said, "I suppose I must be going. I'm on my way to the club."

Meekton rose, too.

"I think I'll go, too," he said. "What?" but in Mrs. Meekton, gazing at her husband out of the corner of her eye.

"Bed!" finished Meekton miserably.

THAT the highest paid employee in the lumbering industry on the Pacific coast is the high-rigger whose job it is to climb the giant trees, topping off the branches as he goes and finally to cut off the top of the tree so that he can set in place the cap and pulley which is later used to move the logs as they are cut? His job requires more nerve and is more hazardous than that of a structural steel worker. The photograph shows a high-rigger nearing the top of a giant fir tree in British Columbia.

We Have Revised Our Prices!

But Quality & Service Remain the Same!
It's Not What You Pay but What You Get that Pays!

You dig a little soil,
You plant a little seed,
You wait a little while
But you see a need,
You wait a little longer
For the seed to grow,
Then each row you work along
With the garden hoe,

I, too, did dig the soil
And waited a little while
But did not find a weed.

The seed I sowed was in good soil
And soon began to show
And the hoe I used was Service tool
That made my business grow.

Items of entertainment included a very humorous reading by Mrs. Evans and a contest which was won by Mrs. McFarlane. The meeting adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem and lunch was served. In April the Institute hopes to meet at the home of Mrs. Summers, when the program will be in charge of Mrs. G. Young, Home Economics convenor. Members are asked to bring their contributions to the A.W.L. handicrafts exhibition.
